PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHTER TODAY

Chamber of Commerce Canvassers
Report Twenty New Members
at Noon Lunch.

ENTHUSIASM AT HIGH TIDE

Indications Are that Increase For Tomorrow Will be as Large if Not Larger.

Since the campaign for a Chamber of Commerce in Rushville began
almost a week ago, prospects for its eventual success were never brighter
than they are today. More interest
was displayed in the project today
and the canvassers met with more
success and received more courteous
treatment than any time yet during
the campaign.

The luncheon today at the Scan-
lan House was the most enthusiastic
one of the series thus far and the one tomorrow promises to be doubly as good. There were a dozen men at the lunch today, several of them
there for the first time, and each man
pledged to bring another tomorrow
so that the crowd will be at least
doubly as large.

Twenty new members were added
today. The score board shows this unusual gain even though there were only two teams working yesterday
evening and one for a short time this morning.

Indications are that this number will be added tomorrow, too. It is barely possible that the number may be half again as large tomorrow.
Three teams were out canvassing
this afternoon and they had bright
prospects of bringing in good reports
for the lunch tomorrow at noon.

Tomorrow an automobile tour of
the outside districts is to be organized and all of the elevators, manufacturers and other business institutions outside of the downtown districts are to be canvassed.

FIRE DOES SMALL DAMAGE

Defective Flue Cause of Fire at Kar-din Home.

Fire from a defective flue did
small damage about noon today to the property owned by Mrs. Will Lewark, corner of Pearl and Second streets and occupied by William Kardin and family. The fire department was called but threw no water
as the blaze was out before they arrived. The flue is considered very dangerous and Chief Easley has advised Mrs. Lewark to have it repaired. A small hole was burned in the roof but the damage will not amount to $10. The house is insured for $600.

PEEPERS AT WORK AGAIN

Frighten Women of Perkins Street
by Looking in Windows.

"Peeping Thomases" are bothering
the residents of North Perkins
street. The old habit of some loafers' of slipping up on verandas or alongside houses and peeping in the windows has been revived. Last night a crowd of young men were engaged in this pastime and it resulted in several women being frightened.

INJURIES FATAL TO CHARLES GATES

Young Man Succumbs at Home in Carthage Following Accident
When Skull Was Fractured.

FUNERAL FRIDAY MORNING

Charles Gates, 29 years old, died
last night about seven o'clock at his home in Carthage following an accident yesterday morning in which he sustained a fractured skull and other
injuries while at work with a construction gang on the Big Four railway just north of Carthage. He was hit on the head with a heavy beam
and at the time it was thought he was fatally hurt. An operation was performed to relieve the pressure on
the brain but he obtained little relief
and the end came at seven o'clock.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs.
Alonzo Gates and was one of the best known young men in Carthage.
He is survived by his parents and three sisters, Mrs. Eva Bedford of Westland, Ind., and the Misses Mary and Alice Gates of Carthage. The funeral services will be conducted Friday morning at ten o'clock in the Methodist church in Carthage and
burial will take place in the Arlington East Hill cemetery.

DIES AT COUNTY ASYLUM

Mrs. Susan Patterson Succumbs
After Long Illness.

Mrs. Susan Patterson, 84 years old, died yesterday afternoon at
four o'clock at the county asylum.
Mrs. Patterson had been in ill health
for some time and death was expected. Death was due to senility. She had been an inmate of the county
asylum for six years. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Lot Berkley and Mrs. Ed Floyd and four sons. The funeral services will be conducted Thursday morning at the Fred Caldwell undertaking parlors
and burial will take place in East
Hill cemetery.

VANGUARD OF OFFICIALS HERE

Grand Officers of Odd Fellows Lodge
Arrive After Dinner For District Meeting.

"ROUND TABLE" DISCUSSION

Climax of Day's Events Anticipated
For Tonight When Public Meeting Will be Held.

The vanguard of the outside—visitors for the district meeting of Odd Fellows here today and tonight arrived shortly afternoon today from Muncie and the degree staff of thirty-
two members from the Indianapolis lodge will arrive shortly after six o'clock on a special car over the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction
line.

The officers who arrived here from Muncie, where a district meeting was held yesterday, were: W. M. Nauer
of Vernon, grand master; W. H.
Leedy of Indianapolis grand secretary; Stephen O. Sharp of Indianapolis, grand patriarch of the grand encampment and Mrs. Ida S. Van-Doran, president of the Rebekah assembly of Indiana.

Indications were this afternoon
that a good crowd would be out for
the "round table" discussions this afternoon, in which the subordinate
lodge members and the grand officers participated. The hour from three to four o'clock was to be devoted to the Rebekah branch of the order and the next hour, from four to five, to
the encampments.

The climax of the day's gathering
is anticipated for the night's meeting, which will begin at seven-thirty
o'clock and continue until nine o'clock. A very cordial invitation is extended to every person in Rushville to attend. Lucas' orchestra will play and talks will be made by the grand officers.

At nine o'clock the first degree will
be exemplified by the Indianapolis
degree team.

CASE CONTINUED.

The case against M. J. Odgen,
charged with assault and battery on Jesse Smith, which was to have been tried by a jury last night in Squire Kratzer's court was postponed indefinitely. Because the attorneys
could not appear it was impossible
to have the hearing last night.

U. R. K. of P. MEETING.

The Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, will hold their regular meeting Thursday night. Drill practice will be held and every member is urged to attend in uniform. It is stated that business of importance
will come before this meeting.

one mile in depth.

BUSINESS WAYS TO BE CHANGED

City Council Will Enforce Ordinance
Against Delinquent Water and Light Rentals.

WILL NOTIFY ONLY ONCE

Committee Appointed to Purchase
New Team For Fire Department
—Will Meet Again Friday.

The city council held another long
session last night and at the end ad-
journcd to meet again Friday night.
Business is so pressing and some of the affairs of the city are in such a
shape that the meeting Friday night
is necessary.

That the council plans to make changes in the manner of doing business from that practiced by the old council was seen last night when orders were issued that delinquent water and light patrons should be discontinued unless they pay up when the bills are due. City Treasurer Steeh told the council that he found
the city had much money out in rentals which was past due. It was stated that the city has about $2,000
out in water and electric rentals left
over by the former council.

The ordinance in effect says that electric rentals are due monthly and
that the water purchased from the city must be paid ten days after the meters are read, which is the first of July and the first of January. One picture show owes the city a large sum for juice and the ordinance will
be enforced without regard to who it hits. The city treasurer was instructed to tell the delinquents but
once and if they did not pay to notify the superintendent of the water
and light plant and their service
would be discontinued.

The judiciary committee consisting of Councilmen Wagoner, Sexton
and McGinnis, was given power to employ legal talent to defend the city
in the suit for $25,000 brought by the county for the Perkins street improvement. Since the suit is against the city the council did not believe
they should give up without a fight.

The elevators at the Mauzy store
and Francis Brothers' factory which are operated by water furnished by the city were brought to the attention of the council. It was stated that the elevators did not give the
city a sufficient revenue to warrant their continuance. The factory is willing to put in an electric elevator
or do away with the water lift if the Mauzy company will do the same. It was stated that the elevator at the Mauzy store required three hundred gallons of water to lift from the first floor to the third and that unless it ran this distance the city did not get any money for the water used. Some time the water bill is three dollars a month and sometime it is eight and
the council did not believe it was
justified in continuing the service under present prices.

Superintendent Mahin stated that
he considered the elevator an unnecessary waste of the city water.
The city clerk was instructed to notify both Mauzy and Francis that they would have to put on a water
meter or devise some other means of operation. A water meter for the Mauzy store on the four inch main
that leads to the elevator would cost
about $275.

Several business houses have electric lights out in front, which are not connected to the meter. The practice has long been continued but will stop from now on. The superintendent was instructed to place all such lights behind a meter. The council will purchase a pump for the forcing water.

ROBBERS OVER DID JOB

Used Too Heavy Charge and Lose Money.

(By United Press.)

Ladoga, Ind., Feb. 4.—Yeggs did
such a good job of safe blowing in
the postoffice here today that while they obtained $1,500 in stamps they blew the outer door so far into the inner door of the safe that they could not reach $23 in cash. Postmaster John Law discovered the robbery this morning.

COMPROMISE IN OSTEMEIR CASE

Big Damage Suit Ends When Plaintiff is Given Judgment For $1,250 and Costs.

IS SENT HERE FROM HANCOCK

The damage suit of Conrad Os-
temeir, administrator of the estate
of William E. Webber, deceased,
against the Terre Haute, Indianapolis and Eastern Traction company,
which started in the circuit court
here yesterday ended suddenly this morning when an agreement was reached. Through the compromise
the plaintiff gets judgment in the sum
of $1,250 and costs.

Since the start of the trial and
two sides tried to reach an agreement and this morning after the
plaintiff's side of the case was completed the jury was retired and the compromise affected. The defense had introduced no witness. The case was sent to this county on a change of venue from Hancock county, where it had twice been tried, the jury failing to reach a verdict both times. Mr. Webber was killed in a grade crossing accident
and $10,000 was demanded in the suit. The costs in the suit amounted to about $300.

RUNYAN TO TAKE STAND LATE TODAY

Defendant in Murder Trial Was to Swear he Was Forced to Shoot
Stull to Save His Life.

PATHETIC FIGURE IN CASE

(By United Press.)

Crawfordsville, Ind. Feb. 4.—Walter Runyan was expected to take the witness stand this afternoon in his defense and swear that he was fore-
d to shoot Arlie Stull to save his own life. Miss Roxie Hart, the defendant's cousin, finished her testimony today. She insisted throughout the severe cross examination
that there was nothing improper between herself and Runyan, but admitted that Mrs. Runyan knew of the correspondence.

It was to seal Stull's lips concerning this attachment that Runyan shot him, the state contends. Another pathetic figure appeared in the case today when Stull's sweetheart,
Miss Hazel Bernard, formerly of Terre Haute, but now a teacher at Waynetown, took the stand. She said Stull told her of his illegitimate
birth and his hate for anyone who spoke disrespectfully of him. The defense claims Stull attacked Runyan for circulating stories and that Runyan fired in self defense.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE MOVEMENT DEAD

Democratic Majority Leader in Congress Indicates This in Speech
This Afternoon.

STANDS FOR STATE RIGHTS

Representative Lenroot Charges Issue Was Choked off at Caucus Last Night.

(By United Press.)

Washington, Feb. 4.—Equal suffrage is dead and buried as far as
the Democratic party is concerned.
Majority leader Underwood indicated this to the House this afternoon.

Charged by Representative Len-
root of Wisconsin with choking off
the equal suffrage issue through last night's caucus vote, Representative
Underwood replied that the judiciary committee still has the power to reopen the equal suffrage constitutional amendment issue, but he positively refused to throw his influence
to get a favorable report of the committee.

"I am not in favor of it," said
Congressman Underwood. "My party
stands for local self government and
in this matter of local self government the one thing above all others
is the right of the public to govern
itself by the state instead of by the whole country. Two-thirds of the House took a stand on this question
last night and you can't have a chance to vote on every measure."

The telegraph wires of the United States would wrap around the world
five hundred times.

Two Can Push Harder Than One

That is literally true when
both are pushing in the same direction.

It clearly states the case regarding the new idea of cooperative work between dealer
and manufacturer for the
pushing of goods advertised in the newspapers.

In this case both are pushing in the same direction towards increased sales and better service to the consumer.

It is the most practical merchandising idea that has been suggested in half a century
and is another evidence of the great power peculiar to the newspapers of this country as a sales producing agency.

Advertisers long ago realized that the newspapers were
the surest and most efficient
advertising medium.

But they did not begin to
reach the great depths of pro-
ductiveness which the newspapers afforded, until the possibilities of co-operative campaigning became apparent.

This year more articles of
national reputation will be advertised in the newspapers
than ever before, and in nearly every instance this will be
backed up by earnest exploitation on the part of the local merchants.

Any merchant interested in
this co-operative work is invited to address the Daily Republican.

Booklet on request.

Dried Fruits Are An Economical and Valuable Diet, Experts Assert

[Special to the Daily Republican.]
Washington, Feb. 4.—Fresh fruits are divided into two classes, "flavor fruits" and "food fruits," according as they are valued for their flavor or as a food, according to the Office of Nutrition Investigations for the United States Department of Agriculture. Those that are 80 per cent or more water fall under the first classification (apples, pears, peaches, and most of our common fruits), while those containing less fall under the latter (bananas, grapes, and figs). The food value of a pound of dried fruit is, of course, much greater than that of a pound of fresh fruit. A pound of the latter will yield an average of about 6 ounces dried, but the amount of water in the original fruit is no guide to the food value of the dried product.

The main change which takes place during drying is the loss of water, but other changes also occur. Very often the right degree of heat produces changes not unlike those which occur during natural ripening on the plant.

In some cases the crude fiber which forms the basis of the plant structure is changed to some form of sugar. The change in flavor is due partly to the proportionate increase of sugar from loss of water and to absolute increase from chemical changes.

To determine which of two fruits is more economical, not only must the cost per pound be known, but the amount of bodily fuel that makes for energy and protein (muscle-building material) a pound of each would supply. One must also consider what expense is required to prepare each for the table. Grapes commonly cost less a pound than raisins, but a given sum spent for grapes will buy a smaller amount of nutritive material, since the proportion of water is much higher than in the raisins.

On the other hand, low-priced fresh fruit is sometimes as economical as a somewhat cheaper dried fruit, since the latter would require sugar and fuel to make it ready for the table.

Attention should also be directed to the extent of inedible material.

Numerous studies made of nutritive values by the Office of Experiment Stations have shown that dried fruits may be termed an economical article of diet. Fruit products in general contain little protein, but as sources of energy, derived almost entirely from their sugar, dried fruits are decidedly cheaper than meats and compare favorably with dairy products. They are, however, more expensive than cereals and starchy vegetables, such as dried beans and potatoes.

Under no circumstances should fresh and dried fruits be thought a luxury, since they supply the needed nutritive material as an integral part of the diet, besides adding to the attractiveness of the daily fare. If they are to be eaten raw, brands made and marketed in a cleanly way should be obtained.

The amount of dried fruit produced in the United States increased 575 per cent between 1899 and 1909. California produces more than four-fifths of the yearly output. According to a very rough estimate, each person in this country consumes on an average 5 or 6 pounds of dried fruit a year.

The value of the product rose from between four and five millions to over twenty-one millions in 10 years. The average wholesale price however, has not advanced with the increased demand; on the contrary, it has dropped from about 5½ cents to about 4½ cents per pound.

Dried fruits are especially useful when the supply of fresh fruits is limited or where storage space for fresh fruits is lacking. Besides used alone, they may be mixed into cakes, puddings, confectionary, and other dishes. They afford a nutritious and economical way of securing a variety of diet, which is often overlooked by the housewife.

Retired Georgia Planter's Advice to Kidney Sufferers.

Regarding the wonderful curative merits of your Swamp-Root, I cannot say too much. After suffering severely for 3 years or more with severe pains caused by weak kidneys, I was finally induced to try Swamp-Root through a testimonial I read in one of the newspapers. I was in such a condition that I was obliged to arise from my bed six or eight times every night. I purchased a fifty-cent bottle and before it was used I felt so much relief that I purchased a one-dollar bottle and by the time this was taken the old pains had left my back and I could sleep the whole night through. I am a retired planter, 70 years of age, and owing to Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, I am in the best of health and feel like a boy. I am always glad to recommend Swamp-Root to those who are in need of it.

Sincerely yours,

HOUSEKEEPERS Must be Watchful

For great efforts are being made in this vicinity to sell baking powders of inferior class, made from alum acids and lime phosphates, both undesirable to those who require high-grade cream of tartar baking powder to make clean and healthful food.

The official Government tests have shown Royal Baking Powder to be a pure, healthful, grape cream of tartar baking powder, of highest strength, and care should be taken to prevent the substitution of any other brand in its place.

Royal Baking Powder costs only a fair price per pound, and is cheaper and better at its price than any other baking powder in the world.

reading, "The Violin," was finely delivered by Mrs. Kennedy, accompanied with delicate music on the piano by Mrs. A. L. Aldridge.

The vocal trio and also quartet was very beautiful. The story, "The Governor's Last Levee," in a reading by Esther Black, held the attention of all to the last word.

The group of piano numbers given by Miss Inez Baldwin, of Indianapolis, were executed so beautifully and she was so warmly applauded, that she gave as an encore the "Minute Waltz" and the closing number of the programme "Salute a Pesth," by Kowalski, a very difficult composition showing the fine work accomplished by this young lady.

A violin solo by Miss Leona Thomas, a song by Miss Edith Buell, a song by Miss Marie Clark and piano solo by Miss Lorene Thomas and one also by Mrs. Taylor, showed the high class of music and its interpretation by the active members of this society.

Amusements

The Portola offers a two reel Kalem production for the first part of the program tonight. It is entitled "The Plot of India's Hillmen." It is said to be a wonderful picture, the scenery being of high order and the photography unexcelled. Carlyle Blackwell and Jane Wolf are shown in this production. The other is a Biograph comedy "A Circumstantial Hero." George Schmidt, the well known baritone of Newcastle will again sing at this theatre.

The Princess will show a Vitagraph two reel feature tonight "The Golden Pathway" for the first picture tonight. Maurice Costello and Mary Charleson are featured. It is said to be a beautiful picture and is full of dramatic situations. The other is a Lubin comedy entitled "The Stolen Switch." Tomorrow night and matinee the feature picture "Wild Beasts at Large" will be shown. It is a two reel subject and is said to be a thriller. Owing to the fact that the picture will be shown but the one night a matinee has been arranged so that everyone will have an opportunity of witnessing the production.

The Gem will show a feature "Unto the Third Generation" for the first one tonight. Florence Lawrence is shown in this one. It is said to be a dramatic production and is portrayed as only a picture can be with Florence Lawrence in the lead. The other is a Rex comedy entitled "The Boob's Dream Girl." Margarita Fischer and Bob Leonard are featured in this one. Tomorrow night the two reel 101 Bison feature "The War of the Cattle Range" will be shown. It is a western drama and is a thrilling picture, the scenes being very realistic.

The petite and peach-blown Gaby Deslys, who a few years ago set the whole world talking, from which it has not yet recovered, will pay her first visit to Indianapolis next Monday afternoon, Feb. 9th, when she comes there surrounded by the Winter Garden Company to fulfil an engagement of one day only at the Murat Theatre, making her debut in that city as a European queen of song and an ingenue leading woman of note.

The Winter Garden Company, which has Gaby under contract, will present her in a modern three act musical comedy, "The Little Parisienne," with book and lyrics by Harold Atteridge and Joseph W. Herbert, and music by Felix Albini. Her supporting company will include such well known players as Harry Pileer, her dancing partner; Forrest Huff, whom local playgoers will recall as the original Chocolate Soldier in the opera of that name; Fritz VonBusing, the Marcia of the same organization; Charles Angelo, Edgar Atchison-Ely, Hattie Kneitel, Louise Meyers, and Percy Lyndal, and a large chorus. Mr. Harry Pileer, of course, is her dancing partner, and has appeared with her not only at the Winter Garden, but for the past two years on the Continent. During those years they have appeared in a number of unique sketches, the foundation of which was dance and song, and in "The Little Parisienne," Gaby and Mr. Pileer will present at least four of these striking and odd specialties, among them being the fascinating

"Gaby Glide." "The Little Parisienne," is not a vaudeville attraction of the road type, but a straight musical comedy with a plot running through the piece. The scenes are laid in and near Paris, and the role played by Gaby is called Henriette, a neglected wife who sets out to teach her husband, a doddering old duke, a lesson which he does not forget.

Gaby's gowns, as usual, will be the center of attraction, she being the most expensively and handsomely gowned woman on the American or foreign stage. Gaby derives much pleasure and takes pride in living up to this reputation. She has just brought with her from Paris over 170 costumes, these being so varied in character and so costly that the custom officers would not permit them to be landed, but sent all of the sixty-five trunks containing them to the appraisers' stores, where it took Gaby and her five maids over a day and a half to go through the formalities of sorting them out.

Achievement is not always success, while reputed failure often is.
The most successful men are not necessarily the ones noisily attracting public attention.

The best and most useful women
are not the bright butterflies of
fashion or the stage, whose press
agents incessantly flaunt their pictures and their little nothings before
the public.

The unlabeled men and women
who are quietly attending to their own little tasks, every day contributing something substantial to industry, prosperity and progress, rearing
children in habits of honest labor
and right living, and supplying example that elevates the moral and
intellectual level of their little communities—these are the men and women of real influence and power.
Success is theirs in the fullest
measure.

The power of the locomotive lies
not in the tremendously puffing
smokestack, or in the shrill scream
of the waste at the safety valve, but
in the unheard, unseen, but silently
working steam in the cylinder.

The swift-flying piston seems to be doing wonders; yet is only being thrown back and forth by a force it
knows nothing about, but must obey.
Just so, the men we call great, because they seem to perform marvels,
are but the expression of the mass
of thought and impulse of the mass
of unknown common people. No great man ever yet sprang up except from
a great people.

It is not given us all to have success as gorgeous as the rainbow.
But no matter. Success consists in doing one's best. Indeed the real success is more in the trying than in the achievement. We may achieve
by accident, by chance help of others, or of forces that are not ours.
But our efforts are all our own. It is our purposes and our efforts that
are a part of our very selves.

How shrunken and pitiful a thing,
how hollow a delusion, is the shining
so called success of self-absorbed
men and women; Like that soldier
under Galerions who found a shining leather bag filled with pearls, and threw away the pearls but carefully
preserved the bag, these self-absorbed
ones are spurning true riches,
real success, to hug to their hearts
things that are empty and worthless.

HEARING STARTED IN FEDERAL COURT

Complaint of Employees Against Traction Company Being Heard
By Judge Anderson.

ALLEGED RULES WERE BROKEN.

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Feb. 4—This was the day set for a hearing in the federal court here on the complaint of street
car employees of Terre Haute that
the T.H.I.E. Traction company had violated its agreement with Judge Anderson not to discriminate against union men pending a decision
from the state public service commission in its investigation of wages
and working conditions in Terre Haute. The company claims that discharge of union men since the agreement made in federal court was justifiable because the men broke
the company rules. The court's jurisdiction is not clear but it is possible that contempt charges may grow out of today's hearing.

SERMON PREACHED TO YOUNG GIRLS

Rev. Milford Lyon Says Better to Die Single Than to Tie Up With Wrong Kind of Man

(By United Press.)

Marion, Ind., Feb. 4.—"Old Maids" were called "ladies in waiting" and "I take off my hat in homage before such women," said the Rev. Dr. Milford Lyon, the evangelist, speaking to young high school girls.

"It's a good deal better to go down to death alone than to tie up with some fellow that you'll have to make excuses and apologies for as long as you live," continued Rev. Lyon. "How are you to know the kind of a young man he is? Find out what his personal habits are. A young fellow that hangs around the pool halls and booze joints most likely will compel you to manure your fingers on the washboard and support the family while he hangs around corners."

"If we had young women with more common sense and more grit and character and backbone, they would teach the young men a few lessons, and we would have a different crowd of young men in this country."

DECISION NOT FORTHCOMING

Public Service Commission Will Make Finding in Indianapolis Street Car Dispute First.

BEFORE THAT OF THE I. & C.

Evidence is All Introduced in One Afternoon Informally and Without Attorneys.

(Special to the Daily Republican)

Indianapolis, Feb. 4.—A decision from the public service commission of Indiana on the hearing conducted yesterday afternoon of the grievances of the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction company trainmen may not be expected for some time yet because the commission will first return its findings in an Indianapolis street car case.

The evidence in the I. & C. case was all given informally yesterday afternoon without even the formality of having attorneys to represent each side. The two grievances of the trainmen on which an agreement can't be reached are the demands for a flat wage scale of thirty-five cents an hour and the separation of the operation of the two divisions so the working hours would be shorter. The present wage scale is graduated from twenty-one to thirty cents an hour.

A committee of five employees, headed by George Schrader, presented testimony for the men on both grievances. In the afternoon the company was to present its side of the case. Charles L. Henry, president of the road; Frank Hall of Muncie, and Winfield T. Durbin, formerly governor of Indiana, stockholders in the company, appeared for the company. Mr. Henry conducted the case for the company.

One of the contentions of the men was that much danger is incurred by employees of the road when they are compelled to telephone from stations along the roadway. The men contend that the I. & C. is equipped with unusually high voltage wires, and the cars create so much wear and tear on the wiring of the road that serious accidents might occur, and they believe insulated platforms should be provided by the company at all telephone stations and that insulated movable platforms should be carried on the cars for use on the telephones along the roadway.

The plan of the company now in vogue sends trainmen along both divisions of the road in order to complete their runs. The men contend that if the divisions were separated and worked more or less independently it would be possible to cut down the "run" time of each employee, who, they say, now works too many hours each day.

Mr. Henry said he saw no objection whatever to a plan whereby the telephones along the company's lines might be insulated, thereby protecting the men. He said, in fact, the company had built some of these platforms in the past but they had been little used. This question came up because of the story of the death of J. M. Walsh, in a telephone booth on the C., H. & D. railroad recently.

The men contended that one reason they should have additional pay is that their work is more dangerous than that of steam railroad employees. Each of them testified on the advance in cost of foodstuffs and other necessities. The four employees who appeared with Schrader were Albert Sparks, Irvin J. Meal, Samuel Warfuel and John Wilson.

That every vehicle user in Rush County had to buy his vehicles where he could get the best bargain for his money and leave it to the majority of vehicle users in the county to decide, you would have to buy your next one from us or break the law. The road service you can get out of one of our buggies makes it an easy proposition for us to sell a customer the second time and also makes it easy for us to sell his neighbors and friends as our vehicle users are always satisfied and make us customers. We still have a few of those nice, roomy Storm Buggies in stock and also have a sample of our 1915 Storm Buggy that you want to see. # The Mystery of the Boule Cabinet

By BURTON E. STEVENSON

Copyright, 1913, by Burton E. Stevenson.

CHAPTER IX. The Veiled Lady.

MR. HORNBLOWER must have driven straight to her family residence on the avenue, or perhaps she was awaiting him at his office. At any rate, he called me up inside the half hour.

"My client would like to see the cabinet at once," he said. "She is in a very nervous condition, especially since she learned that some one else has tried to open the drawer. When will it be convenient for you to go with us?"

"I can go at once," I said. "Then we will drive around for you. We should be there in fifteen or twenty minutes."

"Very well," I said, "I'll be ready. I shall, of course, want to take a witness with me."

"That is quite proper," assented Mr. Hornblower. "We can have no objection to that. In twenty minutes, then."

I got the Record office as soon as I could, but Godfrey was not there. He did not come on usually, some one said, until the middle of the afternoon. I rang up his rooms, but there was no reply. Finally I called up the Vantine house.

"Parks," I said, "I am bringing up some people to look at that cabinet. It might be just as well to get that cut out of the way and have all the lights going."

"The lights are already going, sir," he said.

"Already going? What do you mean?"

"Mr. Godfrey has been here for quite awhile, sir, fooling with that cabinet thing."

"Tell him, Parks, that I am bringing some people up to see the cabinet and that I should like him to stay there and be a witness of the proceedings."

"Very well, sir," assented Parks.

"Everything quiet?"

"Oh, yes, sir. There was two policemen outside all night and Rogers and me inside."

"Mr. Hornblower's carriage is below, sir," announced the office boy, opening the door.

"All right," I said. "We are coming right up, Parks. Goodbye," and I hung up and slipped into my coat.

Then as I took down my hat a sudden thought struck me. If the unknown Frenchman was indeed an emissary of Monsieur X., madame might be acquainted with him. It was a long shot, but worth trying. I stepped to my desk, took out the photograph which Godfrey had given me and slipped it into my pocket. Then I hurried out to the elevator.

There were three persons in the carriage. Mr. Hornblower sat with his back to the horses, and two women were on the opposite seat. Both were dressed in black and heavily veiled, but there was about them the indefinable distinction of mistress and maid. The latter was restless and uneasy.

Mr. Hornblower glanced behind me as I entered.

"You spoke of a witness," he said. "He is at the Vantine house," I explained and sat down beside him.

"This is Mr. Lester," he said, and the veiled lady opposite him, whom I had known at once to be the mistress, inclined her head a little.

Parks opened the door to us, and, nodding to him, I led the way along the hall and into the anteroom. Godfrey was awaiting us there, and I saw the flame of interest which leaped into his eyes as Mr. Hornblower and the two veiled women entered.

"This is my witness," I said to the former. "Mr. Godfrey—Mr. Hornblower."

Godfrey bowed, and Hornblower regarded him with a good humored smile.

"If I were not sure of Mr. Godfrey's discretion," he said, "I should object. But I have tested it before this and know that it can be relied upon."

The woman I had decided was the maid sat down as though her legs were unable to sustain her and was nervously clasping and unclasping her hands. Even her mistress showed signs of impatience.

"The cabinet is in here," I said and led the way into the inner room, the two men and the veiled lady at my heels.

It stood in the middle of the floor, just as it had stood since the night of the tragedy, and all the lights were going. As I entered I noticed Godfrey's gauntlet lying on a chair.

"Is it the right one, madam?" I asked.

"Yes," she answered, with a gasp that was almost a sob.

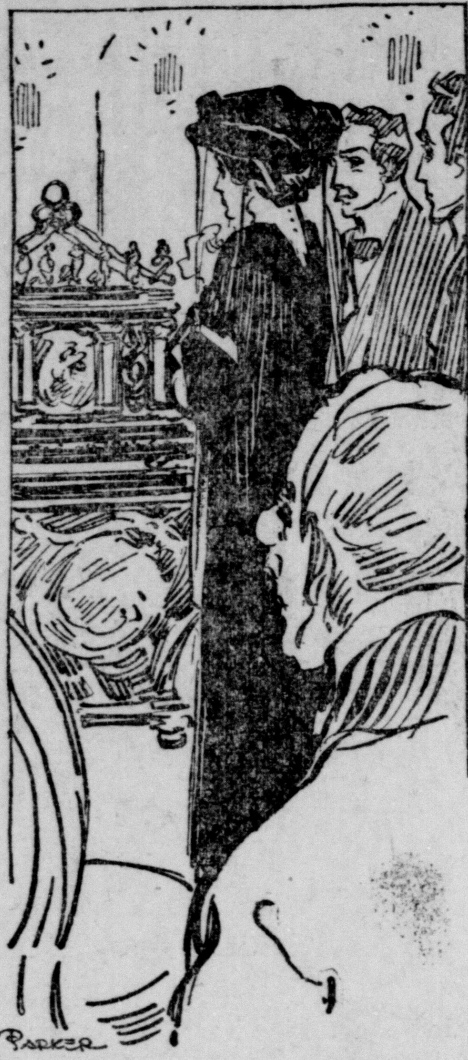

"You are sure?" I queried.

"Do you think I could be mistaken in such a matter, sir? I assure you that this cabinet at one time belonged to me. You permit me?" she added and took a step toward it.

"One moment, madame," I interposed. "I must warn you that in touching that cabinet you are running a great risk."

"A great risk?" she echoed, looking at me.

"Is there not connected with the

"In touching that cabinet you are running a great risk."

drawer," I asked, "a mechanism which as the drawer is opened plunges two poisoned fangs into the hand which opens it?"

"No, Mr. Lester," she answered, as to a question in her voice, "I assure you there is no such mechanism."

I clutched at a last straw, and a sorry one it was.

"The mechanism may have been placed there since the cabinet passed from your possession," I suggested.

"That is perhaps possible," she agreed, though I saw that she was unconvinced.

"At any rate, madame," I said, "I would ask that in opening the drawer you wear this gauntlet," and I picked up Godfrey's gauntlet from the chair on which it lay. "It is needless that you should take any risk, however slight. Permit me," and I slipped the gauntlet over her right hand.

As I did so I glanced at Godfrey. He was staring at the veiled lady with such a look of stupefaction that I nearly choked with delight. It had not often been my luck to see Jim Godfrey mystified, but he was certainly mystified now.

She moved toward the cabinet, Godfrey and I close behind her. Instinctively I glanced toward the shuttered window, but the semicircle of light was unobscured.

The veiled lady bent above the table and disposed the fingers of her right hand to fit the metal inlay midway of the left side.

"It is a little awkward," she said. "I have always been accustomed to using the left hand. You will notice that I am pressing on three points. But to open the drawer one must press these points in a certain order—first this one, then this one and then this one."

There was a sharp click, and at the side of the table a piece of the metal inlay fell forward.

"That is the handle," said the veiled lady, and without an instant's hesitation, while my heart stood still, she grasped it and drew out a shallow drawer. "Ah!" And, casting aside the ridiculous gauntlet, she caught up the packet of papers which lay within. "You see that they are only letters. Mr. Lester," she said in a low voice, "and I assure you that they belong to me."

"I believe you, madame," I said, and, with a sigh of relief that was almost a sob, she rebound the packet and slipped it into the bosom of her gown. "There is one thing," I added, "which madame can, perhaps, do for me."

"I shall be most happy," she breathed. "As I have told Mr. Hornblower," I continued, "two men died in this room the day before yesterday, or, rather, it was in the room beyond that they died, but we believe it was here they received the wounds which caused death. It seems that we were wrong in this."

"Undoubtedly," she agreed. "There has never been any such weird mechanism as you described connected with that drawer, Mr. Lester—at least not since I have had it. There is a legend, you know, that the cabinet was made for Mme. de Montepan."

"Mr. Vantine suspected as much," I said. "He was examining it at the time he died. What the other man was doing we do not know, but if we could identify him it might help us. It has occurred to me, madame, that you may have seen him on La Touraine—that he may even be known to you."

"What was his name?"

"The card he sent in to Mr. Vantine bore the name of Theophile D'Aurelle."

She shook her head.

"I have never before heard that name, Mr. Lester."

"Perhaps you will recognize this photograph?"

She took it, looked at it and again shook her head. Then she looked at it again, turning aside and raising her veil in order to see it better.

"There seems to be something familiar about the face," she said at last, "as though I might have seen the man somewhere."

"On the boat, perhaps," I suggested, but I knew very well it was not on the boat, since the man had crossed in the steamer.

"No; it was not on the boat. I did not leave my stateroom on the boat. But I am quite sure that I have seen him, and yet I can't say where. Perhaps my maid can help us." Photograph in hand, she stepped through the doorway into the outer room.

"Julie," said she in rapid French, "I have here the photograph of a man who was killed in this room most mysteriously a few days ago. These gentlemen wish to identify him. The face seems to me somehow familiar, but I cannot place it. Look at it."

Julie put forth a shaking hand, took the photograph and glanced at it; then, with a long sigh, slid limply to the floor before either Godfrey or I could catch her.

As she fell her veil, catching on the chair back, was torn away, and, looking down at her, a great emotion burst within me, for I recognized the mysterious woman whose photograph D'Aurelle had carried in his watch case.

For a moment I stood spellbound, staring down at that faded and passion stained countenance; then Godfrey sprang forward and lifted the unconscious woman to the couch.

"Bring some water," he said, and as he turned and looked at me I saw that his face was glowing with excitement.

I rushed to the door and snatched it open. Rogers was standing in the hall outside, and I sent him hurrying for the water and turned back into the room.

Godfrey was chafing the girl's hands, and the veiled lady was bending over her, fumbling at the hooks of her bodice.

"Here's the water, sir," said Rogers and handed me glass and pitcher.

The next instant his eyes fell upon the woman on the couch. He stood staring, his face turning slowly purple; then, clutching at his throat, he half turned and fell just as I had seen him do once before. Then Parks appeared.

"Rogers has had another fit. Get the ammonia!" shouted Godfrey. Parks staggered away.

When he came back a moment later with the ammonia he held up Rogers' head, while Parks applied the phial to his nostrils.

Madame, meanwhile, had dashed some water into the face of the unconscious Julie.

"She will soon be all right again," she said, and, truly enough, at the end of a few seconds, the girl opened her eyes and looked dazedly about her. Then a violent trembling seized her.

"What is it, Julie?" asked her mistress, taking her hand. "You knew this man?"

A hoarse sob was the only answer.

"You must tell me," went on madame quietly, but firmly. "You knew this man?"

The girl nodded and closed her eyes. "In Paris?"

The girl nodded again.

"He was your lover?"

A third nod, and a flood of tears. "I remember, now," said madame suddenly. "I saw him with her once. What was he doing in this house?" she went on more sternly.

"Madame will never forgive me!" sobbed the girl, and I began to think

"It is a lie!"

that she was more concerned for herself than for her lover. The same thought occurred to her mistress, too, no doubt, for her voice hardened.

"Try me," she said. "Understand well, you must tell—if not here, then before an officer of the police."

"Oh, no, no!" screamed Julie, sitting suddenly erect. "Never that! I could not bear that! Madame would not be so cruel. I will tell. I will tell everything. After all, I was not to blame. It was that creature, I did not love him—but I feared him. He possessed a power over me. He could make me do anything. He even beat me! And still I went back to him!"

"What was his name?" asked the veiled lady.

"Georges Drouet—he lived in the Rue de la Huchette, just off the Rue St. Jacques—on the top floor, under the gutters. He was bad—bad. I met him six months ago. He knew how to fascinate one. I thought he loved me. Then he began to borrow money from me until he had taken all that I had saved, then my rings—every one!" She held up her hands to show their bareness. "Then—"

She stopped and glanced at her mistress.

"Continue!" said the latter.

"I knew of the secret drawer. Madame will remember her despair, her horror, when she entered her room to find the cabinet gone, taken away, sold by that—I, too, was in despair—I desired with my whole soul to help madame. That night I had a rendezvous with him."

Her mistress stood as though turned to stone.

"He questioned me. He learned everything. The drawer, how it was opened—all. But I did not suspect what was in his mind—not for an instant did I suspect. But on the boat I saw him, and then I knew. Well, he has got what he deserved."

She shivered and pressed her hands against her eyes.

"That is all of that story," said Godfrey in a crisp voice; "but there is another. Ask her, madame, for what purpose she called at this house, night before last, and saw Philip Vantine in this room."

"I did not!" shrieked the girl, her face ablaze. "It is a lie!"

"She came for the letters," went on Godfrey inexorably. "Any fool could guess. She came for the letters! She had resolved herself to blackmail you, madame!"

"It is a lie!" shrieked the girl again. "I came hoping to save her—to—"

I could see how the veiled lady was trembling. I placed a chair for her, and she sank into it with a murmur of thanks.

"Besides, we have a witness to her visit," added Godfrey. "Shall I call the police, madame?"

"No, no!" and the girl sat upright again, her face ghastly. "I will tell. I will tell all. Give me but a moment!"

I saw her eyes widen, and, glancing around, I saw that Rogers had dragged himself to a sitting posture and was staring at her, his face livid. The sight of him seemed to madden her.

"It was you!" she shrieked, and shook her clenched fist at him. "It was you who told! Coward! Coward!"

"Be still!" cried Godfrey. "He told us nothing. He tried to shield you."

Rogers broke in with a hollow and ghastly laugh. "It was natural enough, sir," he said hoarsely. "She's my wife."

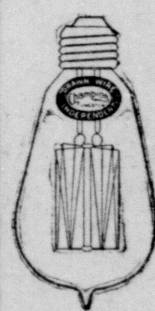

To be continued.

Congressman Kirkpatrick is Called the "Bullet Cushion"

(By Burton K. Standish.)
(Written for United Press.)

Washington, Feb. 4.—Around Congress they call him the "Bullet Cushion."

His right name is Sant Kirkpatrick, and he is Representative from the Sixth Iowa district which used to be solidly Republican. But that has nothing to do with the strange appellation.

He received that title after counterfeiter, moonshiner and other "bad men" had pumped 200 pieces of lead into him in his 22 years service with the United States Internal Revenue Service. In addition to the couple of hundred lead pellets scattered through his anatomy, Representative Kirkpatrick can boast of one glass eye, one hole in the leg, acquittals on every charge against him from petit larceny to murder, to say nothing of a reputation for willingness to fight anything from the Old Nick himself to a den of wildcats.

The "Bullet Cushion" is close to seventy years old now, but the old fighting spirit is still with him, and he still boasts that he can "shave a man's moastache at 37 y. is with a 32 calibre razor.

Strange to relate, Kirkpatrick went through the Civil War without a wound. Twenty-seven of the shot that he carried as a souvenir of his earlier labors for Uncle Sam came from a moonshine hunt in South Carolina. Pursuing one of these southern desperadoes, Kirkpatrick was turned upon and the contents of an old muzzle loading shot gun was discharged in his face. That's how Sant lost his eyesight and fractured his jaw. And that's why, too, there sleeps today in a mountain grave, one unknown moonshiner.

A new baby, a solid silver spoon and a moment's carelessness all but disrupted the Division of Publications of the Department of Agriculture a few days ago.

The baby is a daughter of Stanley Searles, one of the editors of the division, and the spoon was subscribed for by the clerks in his office. At the last moment before the spoon was presented to the proud father one of the clerks took it from its box to show it to a friend, and then failed to return it, simply laying it in the drawer.

As Searles started to leave he was surrounded by his associates and one of them, with a few laudatory words, presented him with a small box daintily tied with ribbon. A hasty glance showed that there was nothing but tissue paper inside and his ire was aroused.

"Speech! Speech!" cried the crowd who mistook his flush for embarrassment.

"It would not do for you to hear what I want to say," said the angered man as he rushed for the door.

Half an hour later the spoon was discovered in the drawer where the box had been, and a messenger bearing the gift and profuse apologies was hurried to the Searles home. Next day Searles made a speech.

Representative John Burnett, of Alabama, enjoys the distribution of being one of the three smallest members of Congress—in the point of height at least. In other directions Burnett makes a mighty creditable showing.

Burnett is a lawyer. Down in Alabama he was arguing a case, barricaded behind a formidable pile of legal literature. The opposing attorney did something to which Burnett took exception, and in a minute he was on his feet objecting.

The judge interrupted him at this point. "It is customary to rise when addressing the court," he observed acidly.

"I'm standing up, your honor," Burnett protested.

The judge stood up, leaned far over the bench, convinced himself that the lack of elevation of Burnett's head—all he could see—couldn't be helped unless he stood on the pile of books in front of him, and then told him to go ahead.

"But be careful in the future," added the judge.

SEEKS HIGH PLACE IN WOODMAN LODGE

Louis W. Otto, Well Known Among Lodgemen Here, Would be Head Banker of the Order.

STATE WANTS TO LAND PLACE

At the urgent request of many prominent Woodmen in the state, Louis W. Otto, of Crawfordsville, has become a candidate for head banker. Indiana Woodmen are anxious that Mr. Otto be elected because of the great advantage it will be to the order to have that officer a resident of this state.

In 1913 the assessor of Livingston county, Illinois, the home of the present head banker, of the Modern Woodmen, listed the funds of that society for taxation and, while the matter is still pending on appeal, yet if it stands the society will have to pay approximately $42 taxes on these funds. It is therefore of great interest to the members that in the future the head banker should be selected from some state where funds of beneficiary societies are exempt from taxation. Foremost among these is Indiana.

Mr. Otto has been a member of the board of auditors of the society. The head, at which this election is to be held, will meet in Toledo next June.

Notice of Final Settlement.

STATE WARDS WELL CARED FOR

Board of State Charities Report on Work For Dependent Children the Last 16 Years.

ORPHAN ASYLUMS INSPECTED

Homes Found For 238 Children and 266 Are Transferred During the Fiscal Year.

The forthcoming annual report from the board of state charities will contain information relative to the work of the state's department for dependent children, the investigations that have been conducted during the last fiscal year into conditions surrounding children and the effects on the general condition of dependent children in the state during the sixteen years the state agency for dependent children has been established.

The work of this department has to do only with children that have been made public wards by the juvenile courts.

The agents of the state board spent a total of 1,514 days in the field during the year, visiting children, investigating applications, placing children in homes, inspecting orphan asylums and conferring with public officials regarding care of certain children. Two thousand nine hundred and forty children were visited, and of these 3,721, or 92.5 per cent., were found doing well or at least fairly well under the new conditions, due to some unusual situation in their families.

The remaining 219, or 75 per cent. were found to be in unsatisfactory condition, and proper action was taken in each case looking to the return of these children to the agencies responsible for them. Forty-three other visits were made to addresses given, and the children reported were not found.

During the twelve months of the fiscal year homes were found for 238 children who had not previously been placed by the agents, and 226 children, formerly placed, were transferred to other homes, making a total of 464 placements and re-placements. One hundred and two children were returned to counties. The applications investigated numbered 512, and all but 105 were approved. The cost of the department for the year was $10,279.51. The traveling expenses of the children, placed by the boards, amounted to $955.95.

This agency was established by the legislature April 1, 1897. In the 16 1/2 years of its existence it has placed 2,981 children in family homes in addition to its other duties of visiting children and inspecting institutions. Six hundred and eighty-nine of these children afterward were returned to their counties. The fact that ten children were placed eight times each, one child nine times, and one child eleven times, is an illustration of the perseverance needed by the state agents.

COUGH TWO YEARS OLD

Yields to Vinol. Read Why.

Strong vigorous men and women hardly ever catch cold; it's only when the system is run down and vitality low that colds and coughs get a foot-hold.

Now isn't it reasonable that the right way to cure a cough is to build up your run down condition again?

Mrs. W. A. McGee of Waycross, Ga., says: "I had a chronic cold and cough which kept me awake nights for two years and I felt tired all the time. Vinol cured my cough and I feel stronger in every way."

The reason Vinol is so efficacious in such cases is because it contains in a delicious concentrated form all the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil, with tonic, blood building iron added.

Chronic coughs and colds yield to Vinol because it builds up the weakened, run-down system.

You can get your money back any time if Vinol does not do all we say. F. B. Johnson & Co Druggists-Rushville, Ind.

BUSINESS WAYS TO BE CHANGED

of water into the boilers at the plant. The present one is for cold water and the new pump is for warm water. It will cost about $192.

Fire Chief Easley gave a report to the council telling of conditions and enumerating the equipment of the department. He also made some recommendations, many of which will be carried out by the council and the fire committee. The report stated that the two horses now used in the department were about past going, being eighteen and nineteen years old respectively. He recommended that the council purchase a new team. He also advised the purchase of shut off nozzles, larger chemicals and new coats and boots for members of the department.

His recommendations also advised the building of a small room for the storing of supplies. Mr. Easley also would equip the old horse wagon and place the little engine, which is out of repair in that part of the building where the old wagon is now kept. The report showed that the city has about 1,300 feet of good hose and a thousand feet of hose in fair condition. The matter of improvements was left to the fire committee. Mayor Bebout was empowered to appoint a committee to purchase new horses for the department. The committee named by the mayor included Councilmen Seudder, Wagoner and Brann. It is certain that a new team will be purchased.

No action was taken on reducing the number of men in the department as recommended by Chief Easley. He would cut the number from fourteen, the present number to nine and use the money now used to pay the fourteen to equip the nine members in first class condition.

Superintendent of the water and light plant, A. A. Mahin gave his monthly report to the council which was ordered placed on file. The report showed that the expenditures at the plant for the month of January were $1,463.42. The amount of cash received by the city treasurer was $1,297.73. Public utilities supplied to the city including fire plugs, street lights and other supplies amounted to $2,928.73 making a net earning for the plant of $1,465.31.

The question of doing away with the water well located at the foot of Julian street and which is near the old gas well was again discussed by the council. The well is the best the city has at present and while it is not now connected with the city mains because of the gas well the pumps have not been removed because the council desired to investigate and see if there was not some way of keeping the gas out of the water. An effort will be made to see who owns the land on which the old gas well is located and it may be cleaned out and then filled as it should have been in the first place.

Claims against the city amounting to almost $1,500 were allowed. The claim of Watt Bartlett for burying cats and dogs was returned with the instructions that he make an affidavit as to the number setting forth where each animal was found. Councilman Seudder stated that the haphazard way of paying bills had to stop. Bartlett had a claim for hauling away six cats and three dogs. His bill usually amounts to about this much each council meeting and hereafter he will be compelled to tell just where they all come from.

Vance and Wicker, who put in side walks in Jackson and Tenth streets, are demanding their money from the city. The work has been completed for four months but the men have never received a cent. The finance committee will investigate the assessment roll of the improvements and the meeting Friday night will be for the purpose of settling the claims of Vance and Wicker.

ARMS RUSHED TO MEXICO TODAY

Following Lifting of the Embargo
Against Rebels by President, Victory Looks Easy.

ADMINISTRATION FOR THEM

President Wilson Said to be Ready to Recognize Revolutionists When They Overthrow Huerta.

(By United Press.)

Washington, Feb. 4.—Arms and ammunition are already being rushed to Texas for the Mexican Rebels. The shipment by the Rebel junta followed immediately President Wilson's proclamation lifting the embargo against Rebel arms.

By the first of next week General Villa will have siege guns and rapid fire arms, with plenty of ammunition. As a result it is believed Torreon will soon fall and then the march on Mexico City will begin in earnest.

The administration believes the Rebels will win. President Wilson is said to be ready to recognize the belligerent ranks of the Rebels, and recognition would make it easy for General Carranza, as head of the revolutionists, to float a loan.

Money is badly needed by the Rebels. There was still some feeling of apprehension in official quarters today over the possibility of an anti-American outbreak in Mexico City.

HIGH SCHOOL HAS TWO BIG GAMES

Take on the Connersville High School
Friday and the Shelbyville
High School Wednesday.

LOCALS IN EXCELLENT SHAPE

The Rushville high school basketball team will meet the Connersville high school team here Friday night, in the Graham gymnasium. The Connersville team recently defeated the local team on the small "gym" floor at Connersville. The local team, after a layoff of two weeks, is now in fine shape. Farthing and Hinkle will play forwards, and Webb at center. Shanahan and Simmes will play guards.

Last week the team was unable to play the Shelbyville team on account of the sickness of so many players. The game will be played here next Wednesday night. The girls will play the curtain raiser for the game Friday night. A game will probably be arranged for between the Orange high school and the Rushville second team, for the curtain raiser to the Rushville-Shelbyville game next Wednesday. With present indications, the local team will take both Connersville and Shelbyville into camp.

Startling Exclusive Improvements Mark the 1914 Harley-Davidson

Step-Starter—Selective Two-Speed—Double Brake Control—Double Control of Free Wheel—Folding Foot Boards—Ful-Floteing Seat, and Other Improvements.

Step-Starter Starts Machine With Rider in the Saddle and Both Wheels on the Ground

THE 1914 Harley-Davidson is marked for the innovations it presents. Innovations, but not experiments, for every feature has stood the test of months and months of hard road service. The Step-Starter—an exclusive feature—furnishes the only practical method of starting a motorcycle. If the rider accidentally stalls the motor it is no longer necessary to hold up traffic on a crowded street, find a level place in the road, get off in the mud, and set the machine on the stand to start it. A downward push on either pedal and the motor again begins to throb.

Selective Type of Two-Speed

The Harley-Davidson selective type of two-speed has proven itself to be exceptionally reliable, extremely simple and wonderfully efficient. Its housing inside the rear hub, thus avoiding dust, dirt or damage. Its speeds are selective and the rider can shift from low to high or high to low or to neutral at any time whether the machine is standing still or in motion.

Double Brake Control

The new Harley-Davidson Band Brake may be operated by a foot lever on the right foot board or by back pedaling on either pedal.

Double Control of Free Wheel

Free Wheel Control is operated by hand or foot. With his hands on the handle-bars the rider has complete control of the 1914 Harley-Davidson.

Folding Foot Boards

The Harley-Davidson foot boards are unusually long permitting a great variety of positions according to the height of the rider. This overcomes the great objection to the ordinary type of foot boards built only to fit the ordinary man. With the Harley-Davidson foot boards whether the rider is tall or short he is not forced to assume an uncomfortable position.

Ful-Floteing Seat

For the third successive year the Ful-Floteing Seat is standard. This patented device floats the weight of the rider between two concealed springs, assimilating all jars and vibration due to rough roads.

Other Refinements

Over thirty desirable improvements are noticeable on the new Harley-Davidson.
